White Grenache was once much more common in the region but has been rather supplanted by red wines all chasing the success of Priorat. This is from a mix of old and young vines and has long lees ageing to bring out the grape's all important textures and aromas.

Herència Altés Garnatxa Garnatxa Negra 2016,
Terra Alta, Spain — €15.95

Stockists: As above

Again a mix of old and young vines and lots of maceration — bright juicy red fruit aromas with touches of blackberry, supple and fleshy with integrated tannins and complex herbal touches on the finish. One of the best expressions of Grenache I've tasted at this price point. Watch also for the Cutpage blend with added Carignan and Syrah.
